Recovery Strategies – Positioning the industry for the upturn

Emerging from the recession, the construction industry will be fundamentally different. In a changed environment, firms must follow new strategies to survive and position themselves for the eventual upturn. This conference will address the new realities and identify new opportunities, markets and strategies - including funding, consolidation and diversification - for the main stakeholders.

Programme & Structure

On the evening of Thursday 24th June, a reception dinner will be held in Saint Patrick's Hall at Dublin Castle.

Two conference sessions will take place on Friday 25th June:

- ◆ The morning session will set the macroeconomic scene for the European economy and present the construction forecasts out to 2012.
- ◆ The afternoon session will offer a range of perspectives on "Recovery strategies and positioning the industry for the upturn".

Simultaneous translation services will be available in German and French.

Who should attend?

The conference is aimed at a wide audience from Europe and beyond, including:

- ◆ Construction industry leaders - producers of materials, plant and equipment, builders, designers, architects, engineers, contractors and project managers.
- ◆ Firms looking to break into new markets.
- ◆ Observers of the construction industry and market trends - including financial analysts, bankers, stockbrokers, economists and investors.
- ◆ Decision makers, including civil servants and politicians.

Dublin: one of Europe's top cities

We are delighted to invite conference participants to Dublin, one of Europe's oldest cities, with few rivals in Europe for atmosphere, culture, night life and visitor attractions.

Dublin Castle

Dublin Castle is our conference venue, situated in the heart of historic Dublin. The site was first fortified by the Vikings in the 9th Century and has played a pivotal role in Irish history and Government for over a millennium. Saint Patrick's Hall is one of Ireland's most prestigious public rooms and is used for the inauguration of the Presidents of Ireland.

While you're in Dublin...

We will offer conference participants the chance to visit the revitalised Dublin Docklands area, including the International Financial Services Centre and Dublin's new Convention Centre.
